Confidentiality Statement

We are here to listen, and will endeavour to treat any information given to us with respect. However, we may need to share information with other people or agencies

Confidentiality may have to be breached in exceptional circumstances. For instance, when we receive information that indicates a person's actions has resulted or may result:

- in child protection concerns
- in harm to themselves
- in harm to others

We will:

- Usually inform the person first, and give them support
- Only share the minimum necessary
- Ensure that their information is only shared with those who need to know
